ODD ABUSE OF A GENTLEMAN.

His Hat Used to Breed Chickens in and his Eye Pecked with a Peacock's Quill.

On Oct. 21, during a party in Bradley's saloon, across the street from the Central, in Paterson, the question arose as to the possibility of raising chickens by a new process. The proposition was, as laid down by a politician who was drinking whiskey punch with the admiral of lemon, sugar, or water, that if it was possible to be broken in the hat of any gentleman, a cock would be raised in it.

UNDER THE NORTH RIVER.

Progress of the Hudson River Tunnel from West River Head.

There was great activity on Saturday at the New York end of the Hudson River Tunnel. The six men employed there were busy with the progress of the last big piece of the tunnel air lock which is to constitute the entrance for the workmen. The design of the chief engineer, Gen. Sooy Smith, for prosecuting the work on this side comprises a huge wooden caisson or box, which is to be built, masted and floated by 24 feet between the caisson and 25 feet high, tapering at the top so as to form a conical shape.

WHEN THE OPERA IS OVER.

Listeners who Wait at the Stage Door to See the Singers—Threats of the Chorus.

"What do you want around here?" asked a policeman of a group of young men who were loitering in front of the stage door of the Academy of Music after the performance. One of them replied that they were only waiting to see the singers come out. "Well, you'll have to stand out of the way. Don't block the sidewalk," said the un sympathetic functionary. They moved aside, seeking signs of vanity upon the steps of the Academy Hall and waiting at the entrance. Presently a crowd of bread-and-butter men and women began to emerge from the stage door, chatting glibly and smoking cigarettes and cigars, and generally gravitating toward adjacent beer saloons.
